

Rather than cataloging the location of all WiFi connection points, have WiFi connection points announce their latitude and longitude, either as part of the handshake or in response to a request from the handset to the WiFi router.